Rebecca was the daughter of Joseph POTTER and Phebe IVES.

Rebecca first married in 1675 Samuel Frisbie, born October 18, 1654 at Branford, New Haven, Connecticut, the son of Edward Frisbie and Hannah Culpepper. Samuel died October 17, 1681.

"Rebecca Frisbie of Branford, widow and relict of Samuel Frisbie deceased, acknowledged to have received of John Rose her father her full portion" might relate to the settlement of the estate of her father Joseph Potter, which would have been under John Rose's control when he married Rebecca's mother. Edward Frisbie, in his will, left five shillings to 'daughter-in-law Rebekah Tyler, relict of my son Samuel.'"

Rebecca married Charles TYLER in 1682 at Branford.
